This historical and musical dissonance comes across throughout Bach: Music in the Castle of Heaven, which can be frustrating to a thoughtful, Lutheran reader. One of the greatest challenges for any historian trying to tackle the life and work of Johann Sebastian Bach is the fact that Bach left so little in the way of personal diaries and intimate family correspondence.

This has entailed piecing together the few biographical shards, scrutinizing the music, and watching for those instances when Bach's personality seems to penetrate the fabric of his notation. Gardiner's aim is "to give the reader a sense of inhabiting the same experiences and sensations that Bach might have had in the act of music-making.
