The new 9-3 departed from the Saab H / EcoPower engine used previously for a new 2.0 L inline-four engine Ecotec engine from General Motors ' for the petrol-powered models. There are three different versions of the turbocharged inline-four, with the amount of turbo boost determining the power output: 1.8T (112 kW), 2.0T (131 kW) and 2.0T (157

The Saab 9-3 saloon is a car styled after an aeroplane. The Saab brand has always appealed to buyers looking for something a little different to the mainstream and the 9-3 is a prime example. It's less obvious than a BMW for instance and has an air of understated style about its looks while still retaining a premium reputation.

The truth is usually somewhere between the two (diesel-petrol) sides. The first generation Saab 9-3 was the first Saab available with a diesel engine, it was 2.2 diesel, and then there were two more versions of the 1.9 JTD aggregate, and we do not forget the 3.0 V6 diesel. All of these engines have some disadvantage, but they are generally very reliable, powerful and economical.

The second generation of the Saab 9-3 exists with two 'global' petrol engines, a straight four-cylinder engine and a six-cylinder V-engine. The most commonly used engine is called B207 (pictured). It is a 4-cylinder, 2.0 litre turbo charged petrol driven in-line engine of aluminium with 4 valves per cylinder, 2 overhead camshafts, and 2 balance shafts integrated in the cylinder block.

Back in 2005, Saab deemed that there could be a third way and the 9-3 Sportwagon demonstrated a very elegant compromise. With used examples now starting to appear in decent numbers, here's what to look out for. Models. Models Covered: (5dr estate 1.8, 2.0 petrol, 2.2 diesel [Airflow, Linear, Linear SE, Vector, Vector
